Affiliate Program Terms

PFloydJr.com | November 25, 2026 · Version 1

Joining the program

This agreement is between the affiliate accepting it and Patrice Floyd Jr., operator of PFloydJr.com in Palmdale, Los Angeles County, California. You choose whether and how to share the offer. You may introduce customers and use the current program flyer and your referral link. Only PFloydJr.com may accept a website order, change its price or scope, or collect the customer's payment.

What earns a commission

For an attributed $299 one-page website, you earn $25 when the customer's $149.50 deposit is received and confirmed. You earn a second $25 once the website is completed and the final $149.50 is received and confirmed. The first installment is earned independently of the second. Joining, clicks, inquiries and recruiting other affiliates carry no commission.

How referrals are credited

Share your personal link or linked flyer embed. The first valid referral tracked in a browser session applies. A customer who comes directly may identify a referrer during the deposit process. PFloydJr.com checks the payment and project records before crediting a manually reported referral. Each payment supports one commission. To report missing or disputed credit, email design@pfloydjr.com with your account email and the project reference.

When and how you are paid

PFloydJr.com sends each earned $25 within seven calendar days after its milestone is confirmed. For the first payment, the clock starts when the deposit is received and confirmed. For the second, it starts when both completion and final payment are confirmed. Provide a valid PayPal payout address to design@pfloydjr.com. If you cannot receive PayPal, contact us to arrange an available method. The affiliate dashboard records payments sent. Provider processing may affect when funds appear.

Refunds and payment disputes

A refunded or disputed payment may place the related commission on hold while the transaction is reviewed. The dashboard preserves previously recorded payouts. Contact design@pfloydjr.com for the status or to submit supporting records.

Tell customers you earn a commission

Disclose the financial relationship clearly with each recommendation, near the flyer or referral link where customers will see it before acting. For example, “I earn a commission if you buy a website through my link.” Put the disclosure on the image or story when viewers may miss the caption. For a spoken video recommendation, disclose it audibly and visibly. Keep the disclosure when reposting or embedding.

Share the offer accurately

Use the current price, inclusions, payment terms and offer deadline published by PFloydJr.com. Describe the 5–7 business days as a target once the project is ready. Make only claims you can support. Do not impersonate the business, invent reviews, promise business results, or present a commission as a guaranteed wage. Stop sharing expired offers.

Email, texts and privacy

Follow applicable advertising and messaging laws. Commercial email must identify the sender accurately, use a truthful subject, include the required advertisement identification and postal address, and provide a working opt-out. Honor opt-outs within ten business days. Obtain any legally required consent for marketing calls and texts. Refer people with their permission. Do not request card, banking or tax identification numbers through the referral form.

Your account and records

PFloydJr.com uses your verified email, referral identifiers, payment references, commission and payout records, and agreement version and acceptance time to operate the program and address disputes. Session cookies support sign-in and referral tracking. Stripe processes client payments. PayPal processes payouts sent through PayPal. Email design@pfloydjr.com about records, privacy, corrections or ending participation. Leaving does not cancel commissions already earned.

Applicable law and agreement

California law applies, subject to mandatory rights under applicable law. Nothing here waives wage, worker-classification, privacy or other rights that cannot be waived. By checking the agreement box and confirming with your verified email, you agree electronically to this version. You can download it from your affiliate page. Changes require acceptance of the revised terms and do not retroactively reduce earned commissions.
